Father's Love Plea Holds Up Miss Klein's Wedding

State Committee Makes Statement—Would Carry Caucus

Miss Hester Klein, the young and winsome daughter of Paul C. Klein, the Boston druggist, has postponed her marriage to Lindsey O. Butts of Melrose until January 25, when she will be eighteen years old, because her father cannot bear to part with her.

Butts, made ill by disappointment and the publicity caused by the postponement, explained today why plans were changed.

Butts was to marry Miss Klein last Wednesday. He had a fiancee from Melrose, where he lives, and from New York, where the Klein home is.

Butts is an expert accountant and has the personal approval of Papa Klein, as well as the love of Miss Hester. But, on the very eve of the wedding, Papa Klein said:

"I cannot stand being parted from Hester now. Postpone the wedding until she is eighteen and I will be satisfied."

The next day it was reported the couple were married, then that they were not. Butts fell ill. But today, propped up in bed at his Melrose home, Butts said:

"Hester's father didn't enter any objection until the very last minute. I knew he felt like that Wednesday afternoon, but thought nothing of it until he told me that he was a postponement. I built this home for myself and father. It was a blow to both of us, but we decided to defer the marriage to January 25."

Lind Sends Ultimatum to Huerta

EDITORIAL STATEMENT SAYS OF WHITE STAR SHIPS HOLD BOYS FOR DEATH OF GIRL

Thomas J. Giffin, the 330-pound East Boston politician, was found guilty today of assaulting James E. Maguire, publisher of the East Boston Free Press—who lips the beam at about 160 pounds. Maguire had opposed Giffin's reelection. Giffin was defeated, and according to witnesses as blamed Maguire for his defeat.

Giffin was found guilty by Judge Barnes in the East Boston Court, after a two-day trial. Maguire had told his own story of the encounter with heavyweights Giffin. Maguire said Giffin struck him without provocation, and that after the first blow, he, Maguire, had no clear recollection of events that immediately followed.

Three witnesses testified that they saw Giffin strike Maguire for the second time as the editor was falling.

Sentence was deferred until this afternoon. Giffin addressed the court, claiming provocation for the assault.

Giffin entered a plea of "Not Guilty." Mr. Hall stated before court opened that his client was prepared to push the case of assault against Giffin but would not prefer another charge against him of carrying from an effort.

A large crowd was at the courthouse and the doors were locked. An extra detail of police was present and only those who had business in the court were allowed inside after the seating capacity was filled. Many women were denied admittance.

At the arrival of Judge Barnes, Mr. Lacey, attorney for Maguire, and Attorney Lacey, for Giffin, went into an inner conference with the judge.

Announcement was made today that the White Star Line has agreed to the Port Directors the privilege of berthing their ships at the southern side of the new Commonwealth pier. The contract for the building of the pier calls for its completion by April 1, 1914. The White Star Line will assign its piers at the Howard Tunnel dock early in the spring.

When asked today if the White Star Line anticipated any improvement here of its service next summer as has been indicated, the officials of the line declared they were not ready to make such an announcement.

The Port Directors refused executive orders to the White Star Line at this side of the pier on the ground that the berthing capacity of 20,000 to ship on one line is ample for two other ship lines.

The Cunard line asked for the southern side of the pier, but the Port Directors refused on the grounds of exclusiveness. Accordingly, the Cunard line decided to continue sailing in East Boston.

McCombs Says He Wants No Office

Wilson Manager, Back From Honolulu, Settles Paris Man Rumor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—"I have no taste for public office and I do not expect to take public office. It is no fun to get offices for other people than to hold them yourself."

This declaration was made today by William F. McCombs, formerly his brother's partner in the National Williams of Washington, and it was made at the time of his return from Europe.

McCombs would succeed Mrs. T. B. Horn as Ambassador to France.

Two South Boston boys—Christopher Harris, twelve, and Thomas Foley, fifteen—were arraigned in the South Boston District Court today charged with the murder of Mary Joyce, a twelve-year-old schoolgirl, by shooting.

The two lads sat and unobtrusively in the courtroom. Judge Foley arraigned them last night with both November 22. The boys were taken to the Charles Street Jail.

The police say that the boys have not told which of the three fired the shot.

"We were firing at a battle on a fence," the lads declared. "We didn't know we had killed the girl until she was told in. Then we heard a freight train for Providence."

The girl was killed in the midst of about seventy feet of her schoolmate on their way home from school, as they passed through a vacant lot off Albany street. Bentley J. McDonough, fifteen, the police have been told, was the only adult witness of the shooting, said today.

Harris appeared to be doing all the firing. He seemed to be firing up in the air. I saw the Joyce girl fall. I had heard a number of shots before. I do not know which of the boys fired the fatal bullet."

Some of the children witnesses said a fat fight was on between two boys when the Joyce girl fell. When accused, each boy had a thirty-two-caliber revolver and a supply of cartridges.

Arrest Beggar in Harvard Crusade
Harvard's police force, headed by "Chief" John Connelley, has declared war on beggars who try to collect on the name of the student in Harvard yard. The first arrest, that of George Wilson, a New Yorker, who was later held in $200 bonds in the Cambridge Police Court. Wilson was accused of begging for money as they passed to and from dinner.

BULLETINS

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 14 (Special)—General Huerta is expected to resign within twenty-four hours.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—It is regarded as certain that a blockade of Mexican ports within forty-eight hours is contemplated by the United States government.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 14.—The Richmond Treadwell Iron Works, which has a contract for furnishing gunboats worth of his shells for the navy, including the thirteen-inch projectiles, has received orders to rush the full amount ordered for a year. The plant is now employing three shifts of men, working night and day, the shells being piled up in the yards and loaded on cars ready for shipment at a moment's notice.

LAREDO, Tex., Nov. 14.—A strong force of Mexican rebels is assembling to attack Nuevo Laredo, just across the line from this city. The town is practically cut off.

LAREDO, Tex., Nov. 14.—The city of Laredo, capital of Nuevo Laredo, was captured today by Mexican rebels after a desperate battle, lasting three days.

NOBLE, Ariz., Nov. 14.—The city of Noble, capital of Sonora, was captured today by Mexican rebels after a desperate battle, lasting three days.

Prof. Taft Guest of President Wilson

Former Chief Executive Makes Brief White House Visit.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Former President Taft unexpectedly came to the White House today and set the staff in a flurry. President Wilson promptly cast aside all his engagements to greet the former chief executive for a few minutes.

"Tell the President I know he is busy and I don't want to bother him. I write him to pay my respects," said Professor Taft to Randolph Foster, a White House clerk. Mr. Taft was preparing to leave when Mr. Foster rushed out from the President's room and told him the President would not permit him to leave the White House without personally welcoming him.

MUST MEET U. S. DEMANDS BY TOMORROW

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Nov. 14.—Special Envoy John Lind has sent a final ultimatum to Huerta. The ultimatum insists that Huerta yield to all demands of the United States by Saturday.

Lind's demand was transmitted to Huerta in a code dispatch sent shortly after midnight. It was telegraphed by an official of the Mexican government who was sent here from Mexico City.

The official conferred secretly with Mr. Lind and was informed of the only basis on which diplomatic negotiations could continue.

This official is an intimate friend of the Mexican dictator and is acting as his personal envoy.

CAVALRY PREPARES FOR PROMPT ACTION ON MEXICAN BORDER

NOBLES, Ariz., Nov. 14.—Military movements along the Mexican border show that preparations are being made for immediate field action.

Orders received by the Ninth United States Cavalry resulted today in all being being restricted. The soldiers of the regiment are preparing their equipment. Several carloads of extra supplies have been received by United States troops at Douglas, Ariz. There are now facilities for transporting supplies for 1,000 men for six months.

Ir. W. Bayard Hale and General Carr, the "Constitutional" leader, are apparently making time while awaiting developments at Washington and Mexico City. In the meantime the latter is proving that Huerta cannot hold out.

Caruso Hires Whole Top Floor of Hotel

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Sigor Karlo Caruso, to insure privacy during his leisure hours, has engaged the sixth floor of the Knickerbocker Hotel, sixteen rooms. One secretary, two valets and his private tailor are with him.

FATHER CLAIMS BAY STATE GIRL IS "TYPICAL"

The AMERICAN prints today a new type of New England girl. Miss Lucretia M. Mount comes from North Attleboro. She has dark brown hair and gray blue eyes.

Her father, who winks in her picture, loves his daughter so, he is delighted to have her of outdoor life, her splendid health, true American features, and her loyalty to New England.

A majority of the girls whose pictures have been sent in so far, have been described as having gray-blue eyes. Now girls with blue eyes, and dark brown eyes send in their pictures, and don't forget to mention the color of eyes and hair, as well as other characteristics. Such information will help the judges in their task, which is daily assuming larger and larger proportions.

The prize, which will be presented to the "Typical American Girl" when she is selected by the judges in this great contest, will be a life-sized oil portrait of herself, painted by a noted New England artist, from personal sketches.

Long in Ireland to Further Ship Line

DUBLIN, Nov. 14.—Henry C. Long of Boston has gone to Blackrock, County Mayo, Ireland, to make a preliminary survey for plans in connection with the proposed steamship line between Boston and Ireland. It is supposed that the project has the backing of several prominent American financiers.

Calls Prince Mirko Fickle, Leaves Him

PARIS, Nov. 14.—Princess Nathalie, daughter of Duke Constantine of Serbia, is considering a divorce suit against her husband, Prince Mirko of Montenegro, King Nicholas' second son. She complains that Mirko lacks stability in his affections, and she has left him, returning to her father.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—"Fads and extravaganzas have been coming in all of our things generally," "The Turkey trot, the Tango, the duplestep, and waltz dancing will die out when the novelty wears off."

"Barefoot Boy" Out of Fashion

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Stockings are being purchased for the "barefoot boy" of Whittier's song, according to a report today from the census bureau. "In the decade ending with 1900," it says, "the output of hosiery more than doubled." The inference drawn is that the barefooted boy has gone out of fashion.

DIXIE CRANE AND JOHNSON IN STAGE ROMANCE

A romance of the stage was uncovered today when it became known that Dixie Crane, the pretty twenty-year-old daughter of Sam Crane, the noted baseball writer, is to be married to Harry Johnson in this city next Saturday.

The young people both follow the stage for a livelihood and have known each other for six months.

Friends of Miss Crane and Mr. Johnson, however, never suspected that they had been hit by one of the great stage romances until today, when the groom-elect suddenly dropped from the procession of his car packed to the gunwales of a number of friends. One of them immediately picked it up and noticed that it was, and the secret was out.

It was stated today that the reason why Miss Crane and Mr. Johnson agreed to play in Boston was because they were anxious to get married before the members of their respective families knew of their intentions.

They believed that they would be able to secure a marriage license and get married immediately, and were surprised when they were informed that they could not get married until five days after the license had been taken out.

Miss Crane is a charming blonde, with big blue eyes. She is a very attractive girl and has taken leading parts in musical sketches for a number of years. Mr. Johnson has likewise been performing before the footlights for a number of years.

They are now playing at the Orpheum Theatre in this city, and will go to New York after their wedding, where they are booked to show in Winter Garden. The young people will then make a trip to California on their honeymoon.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's Amazing Love Story

EVELYN TELLS OF COUNTLESS WHO TRIED TO DIE FOR LOVE OF HARRY

The Countess de Montagne, they told me, had been desperately in love with Harry. She was lovely, they said, and very rich. She had been one of the guests at that banquet.

When the fact that Harry did not love her she had tried to kill herself. And, failing in that, she had tried to drown herself in the depths—desiring only to come as little in contact with the world as possible, and all because of her unrequited love for my husband.

It seemed very pathetic to me—the poor Countess going to all that trouble. She must, I thought, have been very deeply in love indeed. I even tried to find out where she was at that time, but I couldn't.

Harry laughed at the story. He said he had often heard of love driving one to drink, but never to water. Still, I often thought of the lonely Countess floating among the fishes in her luxurious submarine. I was very young!—From Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's own story, now being published in the Boston Sunday AMERICAN. Read next Sunday's issue.

the girl. He told her what he had heard—about that Countess who had been killed. She told her story and had it copied into an affidavit, in which she swore. It cost another $100 to get the affidavit.

I brought the affidavit to Harry Thaw as soon as I had received it from Father. It had been completed to go to court, in 30 days, where the girl then was. Thaw was excited. The affidavit had to be translated from the Polish. That cost $10.

Finally Thaw asked me to go to Europe and bring the girl back here. It was positively difficult for me to do this at that time, but I consented. I told him that I would have to leave some money in my place. We began looking for a place. Father Binkowski added that the matter was dropped then on account of the heavy cost, also paid by me now seeking to recover money he had already paid out.

Not Betrayed by White. The Thaw counsel had another side to this startling story, however. They said that the case of the unfortunate Polish girl had long been investigated and found to be unsuitable for the defense. Once they said, the victim was a German, not a girl, later a chorus girl, then an Irish maid, and this last time a Polish girl.

The Polish girl story was forgotten until January 21, the day that Harry Thaw was to begin. On that day Father Binkowski came to New York in great distress, hurried to the various newspaper offices and said what he had finally learned that the name of the man who had betrayed the Polish maid was "white," which is German for White.

From the girl's parents the girl's trial might be postponed from January 21. He went to Father Binkowski's office where he found Assistant District Attorney Smith, who pronounced Harry Thaw's story.

The District Attorney is not going to move any case to trial to the prejudice of the Thaw case. There is nothing that will be permitted to interfere with that trial. There is a possibility that some case may be carried over a few hours on the date set, but the District Attorney means to go on with the trial.

Announcement was also made at the District Attorney's office the same day that Justice Fitzgerald would preside at the Thaw trial.

About the Katherine Augusta Victoria, which was speaking to New York, was a trial passenger who was coming with Harry Thaw to the Thaw trial. She was the Countess of Yarmouth, formerly Alton Thaw.

The numerous lesser victims of Harry's homicidal act included the Countess's own unfortunate marriage as well as all the nerve-wracked on account of her brother's trial.

The Countess had never seen Evelyn Thaw and Evelyn, but, now that the name was being to Harry's aid, all personal feeling was put aside in the common cause to save the prisoner.

JUDGE SETS THAW HEARING FOR TUESDAY

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 14.—Judge Aldrich today announced that he would hold the hearing on the Harry K. Thaw case in Concord next Tuesday at 11 a. m.

The hearing will be on W. J. Zerk's motion to dismiss the petition for a habeas corpus writ, and also to take up any new matter in regard to the Thaw case, which was properly come before the United States District Court.

Former Governor Rine of Pennsylvania, chief counsel for Thaw, will return tonight from New York, where he has been working through the Grand Jury to have Thaw released from the Concord jail.

There was no question but what a man of Thaw's rank and position would be the chief trial might be postponed from January 21. He went to Father Binkowski's office where he found Assistant District Attorney Smith, who pronounced Harry Thaw's story.

The District Attorney is not going to move any case to trial to the prejudice of the Thaw case. There is nothing that will be permitted to interfere with that trial. Pimples Source of Great Danger

In thousands of instances the most virulent types of blood troubles have been the result of contracting in contact with disease germs in public places, and the apparently insignificant pimple has been the cause. It is a germ with astonishing rapidity, often infecting the entire system in a few days.

It is fortunate, however, that there is a remedy to cure quickly and effectively with such a condition, and thanks to the courage of its producers the famous R. S. S. is now here to aid any drug store in the civilized world.

This preparation also acts as a blood purifier. It is a scientific restorative in composition, since it accomplishes all that was ever obtained the mercury, iodine, arsenic and other destructive mineral drugs, and yet it is absolutely a purely vegetable product.

It is the germ which enters the active pores of the skin, and the health and brilliant complexion of its own as natural treatment. There are many cases of skin diseases, including eczema, scabies, psoriasis and similar diseases, which are the result of the germ which enters the active pores of the skin. These facts are taught out in a book, "The Germ Which Enters the Active Pores of the Skin," which is mailed free, together with several leaflets, to all who write describing their symptoms.

Get a bottle of R. S. S. today, but be careful not to have anything rubbed off on your face claimed to be "just as good."

The only reason why anyone will try to sell you something in place of R. S. S. is the extra profit.

Their Married Life

Heleen Loses a Pearl from a Pendant She Had Taken on Approval

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

MRS. STEVENS opened the small box which she had just received. "What a lovely thing! A pearl and diamond brooch!" "And it's a pink pearl, too!" Heleen looked forward with breathless admiration. "Aren't they very rare?" "Well, she said she had just found one, but I could have it for just what she could give it for—a hundred and fifty."

Later, when they were leaving, Mrs. Stevens whispered: "Now, don't be a little goose. Let him see it for you if he wants it." HELEN IS SORRY But outside Heleen took Warren's arm with an exclamation. "Dear, I'm so sorry Mrs. Stevens suggested that. You know I don't want anything so expensive. I know we can't afford it."

A BEAUTIFUL SIGHT The platform clock was almost invisible, and the lustreous pendant seemed to glow unopposed on Heleen's white neck.

"What a little thing!" Mrs. Stevens, as he and Warren came to the door of the dining room, where they had lingered over their chairs.

"I was showing Mrs. Barclay's lavaliere." "Tell him about it, Emma," urged Mrs. Stevens. "Last summer at the Hotel 'Grove,'" began Mrs. Stevens, who loved to tell a story, "we met Mrs. Barclay. She's engaged to be a wealthy widow, but Henry thinks she's something of an adventuress. At any rate she has some wonderful jewelry. Yesterday she came here with a long story. It seems she's lost a lot of money in stocks and lost her jewelry. She said I could have it for—"

"A hundred and fifty?" "A hundred and fifty," agreed Warren, who was always skeptical about such stories.

"Of course, I don't know how much it's worth. But, at any rate, this must be worth a hundred and fifty."

"If that pearl's all right, it ought to be worth a great deal more," agreed Warren.

UP TO WARREN "There," turning her, smiling toward Warren. "Why don't you give it to her for a Christmas present? I already have one—that's the only reason I brought it."

The prize that followed was somewhat awkward. No man likes to be put in the position of admitting that he cannot afford to do what he wants to give his wife jewelry.

"Oh, yes, you know I don't want you to get anything so expensive," faltered Mrs. Stevens, looking down at the great and sudden distance. Her very dress was weak and shabby.

"Why not take it home and think about it? I don't like to give Mrs. Barclay a diamond until after tomorrow."

"Yes, we're the poorest of the poor," said Heleen, looking at her husband with a sad smile. "I don't like to give it to you until after tomorrow."

"I don't like to give it to you until after tomorrow," said Heleen, looking at her husband with a sad smile.

"I don't like to give it to you until after tomorrow," said Heleen, looking at her husband with a sad smile.

"All Possible Information Regarding the Mexican Situation"

Copyright, 1913, by the Star Company.

Samuel Grossman, a boy, at present building up his character in a High School, says:

"Dear Sir—Will you kindly send me all information possible regarding the Mexican situation? There will be a debate at my High School. I am to take the negative side of the question, 'Shall the United States Intervene in the Mexican Situation?'"

Here is at least a little information:

Mexico is a wonderful country of opportunity and fertility. The opportunity and the fertility are neglected and go to waste for lack of the right kind of government.

The powerful man who ruled with a hand of iron was removed, and no man came with power to take his place.

Mexico lacks a man with intelligence, character and motives to represent the will and the welfare of the Mexican people. And she lacks a man with the genius to rule by force and keep peace by dread of his own greater violence.

The United States sooner or later MUST REGULATE MEXICAN CONDITIONS. Murder and anarchy cannot continue indefinitely on this continent. The United States is bound to maintain order and respect for life and property or abandon the Monroe Doctrine, which forbids European governments to interfere with governments on this continent.

The United States WILL NOT ABANDON THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

Our President at Washington has pursued a policy thus far which may be compared with the conduct of an able-bodied gentleman who saw his neighbor beating his wife to death. The able-bodied gentleman shook his finger at the wife beater and said, "Naughty, naughty, you must stop that."

Mr. Wilson will get tired of shaking his finger after a while. He will realize that "murderous dictator and his gang are different from a class of sophomores."

Eventually the United States will be compelled to attend to its duty as self-appointed regulator of conditions on this continent.

In what way the United States will act cannot be foretold at this moment.

It is suggested that the Mexicans in revolt against Huerta's criminal government be freely supplied with arms from our side of the line.

At present we do not permit arms and ammunition to be sent to the revolutionists from our territory. Thus the rebellion against Huerta is crippled and he is kept in power because his opponents lack weapons to fight him.

If we should permit unlimited shipping of rifles, cannon and ammunition to Mexico it is quite probable that the revolutionists would overthrow Huerta, the present dictator.

But these questions arise:

And if we found it necessary to intervene and pacify Mexico, should we not feel rather foolish if our soldiers were shot at from house tops and hill tops WITH GUNS SENT IN UNLIMITED QUANTITIES FROM THIS COUNTRY WITH OUR PERMISSION?

Inasmuch as we may have before long to send our own men to police and pacify Mexico, isn't it better to have as few arms in the hands of Mexicans as possible?

Another very important question is raised by President Wilson's quite solemn statement (which, of course, is binding only on Woodrow Wilson) that the United States would not take or conquer any more territory on this continent.

Of course Woodrow Wilson has no right whatever to bind the United States by any statement of that kind. He is the representative of the people, not THE CONSCIENCE of the people. And it is not for him or any other man to say that the United States shall not extend to Mexico and all the way down to our possessions at Panama the advantages of United States government and partnership that have been extended to Texas, California and other regions once outside of our ownership.

However, Mr. Wilson is President, and if we are obliged to send troops into Mexico during his term they will go to Mexico with the understanding that he will do what he can to arrange matters so that their fighting, their dangers and the death of many will do no particular good to this country or to anybody else.

What good would it do the United States to spend a few millions and sacrifice a few thousand American lives now to pacify Mexico for a little while?

Does anybody imagine that anything but actual ownership will permanently pacify the Mexican territory?

How would the soldiers feel if told, "You may go to Mexico and be shot, and then you can come home and some Mexican gentlemen will get the reward of your work and run the country?"

We are afraid that they would not feel very enthusiastic.

Mexico and the Mexicans need, although many of them may not realize it, just exactly what the inhabitants of territory in Texas and California and elsewhere needed before they entered the Union.

Mexico needs stable government, partnership in the greatest nation on this continent, prosperity, schools, industries, equal rights for all, encouragement for agriculture—all these things and many others the United States could give to Mexico.

The high school boy who writes us will find it hard work to take the negative side of the question, "Shall the United States Intervene in the Mexican Situation?"

If you were a very big and powerful man living next door to a quarrelsome, murderous little individual, boasting, bragging and cutting throats every day, you would be bound in common decency to intervene and protect the weak.

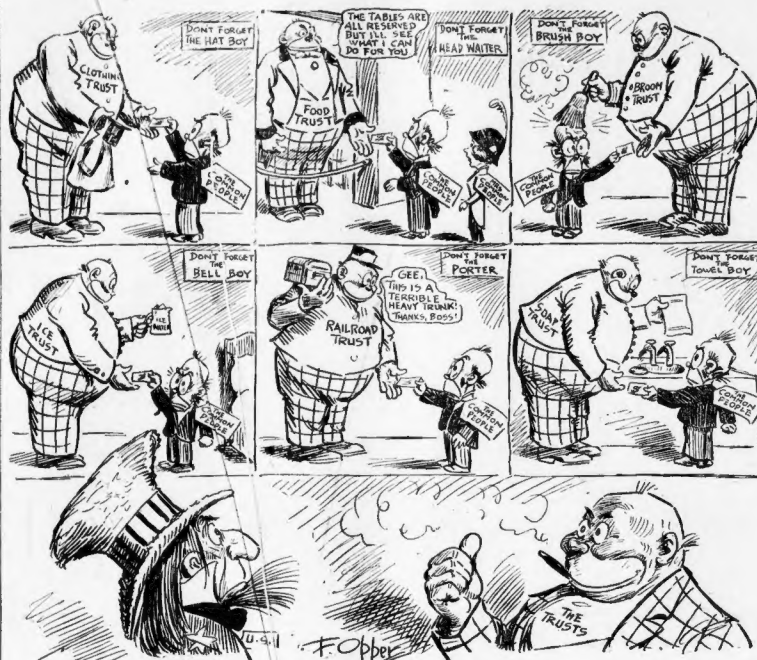

That is Uncle Sam's situation as regards Mexico.

"Yes, Sam, old boy, the tipping epidemic has spread all over the country now! Wherever you go you've got to hand out tips! You're breeding a fine race of American flunkies! Wouldn't it make the lads that fought at Concord and Lexington mad if they could see their descendants with liveries on, holding out their hands for tips; Here are a few sketches I've made to show that the corporations are keeping pace with the custom of the day! You know, Sam, that little goggle-eyed fellow may not be the easiest thing on earth, but he's near it, very near it! Har, har!"

More Thanks from Jewish Societies

FROM LAZARUS DAVIS LODGE, No. 548, INDEPENDENT ORDER BIRTH ABRAHAM Editor BOSTON AMERICAN: I wish to express my sincere thanks to the Boston American in behalf of the members of Lazarus Davis Lodge, No. 548, Independent Order Birth Abraham for the good work the AMERICAN has done and the valuable assistance you have rendered in your paper towards the case of Mendel Beile and the Jewish people in general. I feel that not only the members of my lodge, but that the entire Jewish people value my sentiments.

JOHN BRIGITMAN, President, Boston, Nov. 11.
FROM NORTH BOSTON LODGE, No. 210, INDEPENDENT ORDER BIRTH ABRAHAM Editor BOSTON AMERICAN: At a meeting of the North Boston Lodge, No. 210, Independent Order Birth Abraham, held on November 8, it was unanimously resolved and voted to thank the BOSTON AMERICAN for the stand it has taken in defense of the Jews, especially in presenting the facts of the prosecution against Mendel Beile.

It is our sincere hope that you will continue your noble undertaking in the future as you have in the past, in order to bring about the release of Mendel Beile from the clutches of the BOSTON AMERICAN. Very respectfully,
HARRY GREENE, President, Boston, November 11.
FROM EAST BOSTON YOUNG WOMEN'S HEREBREW ASSOCIATION, Editor BOSTON AMERICAN: At a special meeting of the East Boston Young Women's Hebrew Association, it was unanimously

Resolved, to present against the continuing attitude of the Boston American in encouraging and fanning the hatred toward the Jewish race by the conspiracy formed against Mendel Beile in the trial mirror case and by it. Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions shall be forwarded to the BOSTON AMERICAN, and to extend the most hearty thanks for the commendable stand it has taken to defend the cause of the Jews.
DORA EVARTS, President, ANNA GREENE, Secretary, East Boston, Nov. 11.
FROM THE FRIENDS FOREVER CLUB OF MANCHESTER, N. H. Editor BOSTON AMERICAN: We wish to render our most heartfelt thanks to you for the splendid work done by you in the case of Mendel Beile. It is due to the work of you and your worthy colleagues that it is possible to save the public law attorney's scandalous charges. Again, we are heartily thanks and continue in the good and noble cause.

Misfortunes—Are You Not Better for Them? If Not, You Have Failed to Learn Your Life's Lesson in Self-Development.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1913, by the Star Company.

YOU who complain bitterly of your troubles and sorrows turn your gaze inward for a time and use what these experiences have done for you.

Are you not stronger in soul, keener in mind, and more self-reliant because of your misfortunes?

Have you not a deeper understanding of human nature, and a larger sympathy for your fellow-men through having known trouble?

If you ask yourself these questions, and if you answer in the negative the next assured more troubles will be sent you.

Sorrows will come until you learn Sympathy and Compassion.

Just as the scholar who has not learned his lessons at school is given the same lessons over and over again, so will you be given sorrow after sorrow and trouble after trouble, until you learn the great lesson of sympathy and compassion.

First of all in thinking of your misfortunes, remember you have brought them on yourself. Not in this life, perhaps, but in former lives. We have a life lived many lives; and by our thoughts and deeds and desires we have fashioned our bodies and our circumstances.

If in other lives you were wasteful and selfish and imprudent and idle, you come to it this life poor and without friends or influence.

It is simply your life's lesson of self-development given you again to learn. Industry, self-control, economy, are the next lessons.

By patient persistence you will learn them all; and the independence and usefulness and happiness will be yours.

If you did not appreciate love and affection in your last incarnation you will be deprived of these blessings for a time in this life.

If you give freely, even though you do not receive, and if you develop every loving impulse, and ask for no return, and if you refuse to think of your misfortunes, and persist in thinking of your great privilege in being allowed to do for others, then love and affection shall come to you eventually.

PHARISEES

WHAT does he know of it? Who never was hurt in the bruising strife, With luxury smoothing his every turn, With no grim reason to tell and care; Who never has seen the dead soul be whirled Hither and yon in the underworld; Who never has mingled with other men Than the smug and sanctified citizen; Who never was hungry, never was cold, Never was tempted by tainted gold, Never once strayed with passion riot? What does he know of life?

What does the know of life? The painfully proper deacon's wife, Who dwells secure in her righteous home With neither the wish nor the chance to roam; Who never was swept by passion's wave To a crust of bread or a moral grave; Who never has known the wild unrest Reigning in many a girl's breast; Ready to judge and quick to spurn, Scolding at things she can never learn, Ever unyielding and unforgiving? What does she know of life or living?

I LOVED you once—I love you still What soul can bid love say? Your memory my heart must thrill At this sad far-off day.

If ecstasy is paid with tears, If joy must end in sorrow; And love comes down through weary years And grim is each tomorrow; If fancy's hour is paid in now, If bliss must reap in pain, And still slow days must dully go, And yet slow moons must wane—

Why, I, who loved you, love you still Despite these years apart; No price too great for that wild thrill You once taught my sad heart.
